UTAH - AFTER VOL 1

The Deseret News, September 30, 1863

THE STATE FAIR
The Social Hall will be thrown open to the public from Friday at noon till dusk on Saturday evening, for the purpose of gratifying their curiosity and satisfying their interest in the products of the Territory, and in the labors of our mechanics. . . .

army during the winter. They would not give any contract for winter supplies to a "Mormon," but all their contracts have been given to Gentiles, and the consequence is, that they are not supplied with either hay, wood, or flour; finding, however, winter upon them, and but a few days' bread on hand, and not being able to procure it, they appealed to Bishop John Sharp for help, to save them from starvation. For flour they offered him $12 per hundred pounds. The Bishop told them that if he helped them he would have to treat them as he did those in his ward—that was, to themselves, what quantity of provisions they had on hand. The Commissary hung open his stores to the Bishop, and the latter found that they had but a few days' provisions on hand; so the Bishop, with President Young's assistance, will undertake to supply the army. Bread-stuff will be very scarce in the Territory before another harvest. The army is trying to get out its own wood, they find it "up and down hill business," to them is broken legs and frozen limbs being the consequences. . . .
